

Pierluigi Tos is Director of the Department of Hand Surgery and Microsurgery of the Orthopaedic Institute Gaetano Pini-CTO in Milan, Italy. Is specialized in both Orthopaedic and Plastic/Reconstructive surgery with a PhD in Neuroscience. He has a special interest in microsurgery and research on nerve regeneration and education. Chief of the Orthopedic Microsurgery Group in the Board of SICOT (International Society for Orthopaedic Surgery) and responsible for the Micro&Hand subgroup inside the European Federation for Hand Surgery (FESSH). Former president of the Italian Society for Microsurgery and former president of the European Federation for Microsurgery (chair of the 16th Congress of the European Federation of Societies for Microsurgery - Milan 9-11 May 2024); in charge of the Education committee of the World Society for Reconstructive Microsurgery. He has been chair of the Hand Trauma Committee and council member of FESSH from 2017 to 2023. He is scientifically responsible for the microsurgery advanced diploma of the Italian Society for Microsurgery (SIM) and Surgery of the Hand (SICM). He has 152 publications in Medline, 4 books, 40 book chapters. Experimental research area: nerve repair and regeneration, teaching methodology, microsurgery and hand surgery. President of the Italian Group of Microsurgery and Limbs Reconstruction of the Italian Society of Orthopaedics, Contract Professor of the University of Milan School of Orthopaedic and Trauma Surgery, European Delegate for the Italian Society for Microsurgery at the EFSM, Hisorian of EFSM, President of the Italian Editorial Committee of the Italian Society for Hand Surgery, Deputy Director and Scientific Board of the Italian Journal of Hand Surgery (Rivista Italiana di Chirurgia della Mano) - the official journal of SICM (Italian Society for Surgery of the Hand), former President of the Education Committee of Italian Society for Surgery of the Hand.